SCHEDULE "A"

REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

THE FLOUR MILL SILOS

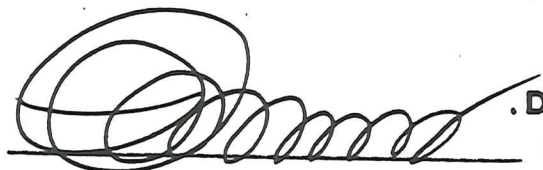

THESE six grain storage silos located on Notre Dame Avenue at St. Charles Street were constructed in 1910 using four foot thick reinforced concrete walls. They formed part of the adjoining flour mill, a seven storey brick structure which began operations in 1911. During World War I, grain milled on this site was shipped to Europe. However, declining demand for overseas shipments during the late 1920's forced the mill's operators to concentrate solely on supplying feed and flour to local residents.

THE Flour Mill's decline was precipitated by competition from the Lake Head Milling operations, the lower grade of locally grown grains, and the decline of farming originated by the incentive of higher pay with the mining industry. The mill eventually ceased operations and was demolished, but demolition of the six storage silos proved so expensive that they were allowed to remain standing.

THE Flour Mill Silos continue to stand proud as a monument to the importance of the area's farming history. In addition, the Silos have given this district of the City its local identity, namely the Flour Mill.
